Undersea Exploration Balked by Troubles

Dr. Otis Barton is handed movie camera by Dr. Maurice Nellis.

SMUGGLER'S COVE, Calif., Aug. 16—(P)—Marine explorer Otis Barton has called off, at least temporarily, his attempt to descend 6000 feet below the ocean's surface.

Beset for three days by mechanical difficulties and rough weather, Barton yesterday had himself hauled back to the surface.

Lavish Tribute Paid To Ethel Barrymore Honored at Dinner On 70th Birthday

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 16—(P)—The president of the United States, the only living former president and a former prime minister of England think Ethel Barrymore is pretty wonderful—but her brother Lionel is not impressed.

Miss Barrymore, distaff ruler of America's royal family of the theater, was 70 years old yesterday. In honor of the occasion, a nationwide broadcast last night carried tributes from President Truman, Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Winston Churchill and scores of other great personalities.

But at a luncheon yesterday Lionel Barrymore could think of nothing more to say than:

"Well, Ethel, I'm awfully happy you are with us and I wish you many happy returns."

Studio head Louis B. Mayer, who gave the luncheon for Miss Barrymore, said: "Gosh, that's a heck of a speech, you can say more than that."

"I'm sorry," replied Lionel, "but my writer has gone to San Francisco."

In contrast, were President Truman's remarks, recorded for the broadcast:

"I am here to pay tribute for myself and for countless of my fellow countrymen to a great lady and a great artist," Truman said. "I have seen her in most of her roles, and I am eternally indebted to her for the pleasure she has given me. To Ethel Barrymore—first lady of the American stage—many happy returns of the day."

Miss Barrymore responded: "I am afraid there is not time enough left in my life for me to thank

Meandering

By Wash Fayette

Few seldom ever make use of the initials in their names. But maybe they're not as lucky as Office T. Stookey.

Hundreds if not thousands of times Office has had to record the letters "O.T." on cards carried by employees of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Odd thing of it is these, letters mean watches of train officials are on time.

Watch inspectors like Stookey have to sign their names immediately after the letters. This pleases Stookey to no end since he's saved the trouble of bothering with his first name or even his initials.

Old railroaders who carry the cards only have to take a look to see if their friend O. T. Stookey has checked their's or their friends' watches.

In the July issue of the "Baltimore and Ohio Magazine" a picture of "On Time" Stookey appeared with a write-up calling attention to the inspector with the convenient initials.

The article stated that Stookey was not only lucky enough to have the first initials O.T. but was fortunate to be a man of several talents.

It mentioned that Stookey is a cabinet maker, that he built all the fixtures in his jewelry store by hand and that he built the first airplane in Fayette County.

New Permanent Seats Set for Gardner Park

A contract was awarded to the Wilson Hardware concern for the construction of a permanent concrete and steel stadium-type seats at Gardner Park at a meeting of the Athletic Association here Monday.

Fred Pierson, a member of the association and WHS football coach, immediately announced plans for financing the construction costs by the sale of season tickets.

He said members of the WHS football squad would start selling the tickets next Monday for $10—$4 of the price to go as a donation for the construction of the new stadium.

In awarding the contract to the Wilson Hardware firm for $6,951—

China Capital Being Deserted By Foreigners

CANTON, Aug. 16—(P)—Big American and British oil companies were pulling out of Canton today in the face of the Communist drive for this refugee capital of Nationalist China. Other foreign firms were leaving too.

The American Standard Vacuum Oil Co., announced it was withdrawing its entire foreign staff. Only Chinese employees will remain to look after the interests of the largest American firm in south China.

The U. S. consulate general in Canton has been ordered to close down before Chinese Communists take the Nationalist capital.

Authorities confirmed the order today but refused further comment.

Most foreign firms were following the lead of the oil companies in evacuating foreign women employees and families of their foreign staffs.

All transportation facilities to the British colony of Hong Kong were booked solid.

Lancaster Hot Ham Cases are Dropped

LANCASTER, Aug. 16—(P)—Indictments against five persons in Lancaster's "hot ham" case were dropped yesterday after county Prosecutor James S. Peterson told the common pleas court he lacked sufficient evidence.

Peterson said that in the light of his experience in other cases which came before the court, he did not have sufficient evidence to prosecute the remaining five under indictment.

Judge Harry Kilburger still has to pronounce sentence on six persons who either have pleaded guilty or have been convicted on charges of stealing meat from the Columbus plant of Swift & Co. with the sentencing, the "hot ham" case will come to an end.

Ousted General Admits Letter Praising Self

President's Aide Again Linked with 'Five Percenters' Probe

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—(P)—Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt said today that Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan asked him to prepare a memorandum on eight officers eligible for Waitt's job as chief of the Army Chemical Corps.

Waitt told the Senate investigations committee that he thought Vaughan, who is President Truman's army aide, asked him to do so at some social gathering—"perhaps a cocktail party."

He said he could not recall the date, but said he thought Vaughan asked him to "give my estimate—my personal opinion"—of officers most likely to be considered for the post.

Further, Waitt acknowledged to the committee, looking into activities of so-called five percenters, that he dictated the memorandum to the secretary of James V. Hunt, a Washington management counselor. Hunt has been a prime figure in the inquiry.

Senator Mundt (R-SD) said when the memorandum was placed in evidence last week that

Federal Funds Tied Up

All Spending Is Blocked Temporarily

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—(P)—The United States military establishment was penniless today, along with the interior department, the Veterans Administration, and the Economic Cooperation Administration.

Technically, said Chairman Cannon (D-Mo) of the House appropriations committee, they can't spend or commit a single penny legally, and some government people "are getting frantic about it."

However, the defense department showed no pressing anxiety. An official said it has authority under basic law to continue contracting for food, fuel, etc.; its civilian payroll normally runs 12 days behind services rendered.

Something may be done about the situation before the end of the day.

It results from the fact that Congress has not yet finally passed the annual appropriation bills for the agencies involved, and a temporary financing measure for them expired last midnight.

Sensors In Reverse

Sensors reversed themselves in a stormy session today and ordered hearings reopened on the administration's $1,450,000,000 foreign arms program.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the combined Senate Foreign Relations and arms services committee announced after a closed session that the groups will hear a half dozen witnesses. They will include Henry A. Wallace and Norman Thomas, both former minority party presidential candidates.

Connally said the additional hearings, starting tomorrow, will take about two days.

He said he doubts now that the Senate group can vote this week on the bill, which was approved for the full amount yesterday by the House foreign affairs committee.

Administration acceptance had been forecast earlier for some of a series of amendments offered by Senators Vandenberg (R-Mich) and Dulles (R-NY) to the foreign arms program.

Reorganization Snag

President Truman took personal command today of the administration's fight to rescue two controversial government reorganization plans.

He did so by summoning six Democratic senators to the White House and appealing for favorable action on the proposals. Senator Hoey (D-NC), who served as spokesman for the six, told reporters afterwards that some of the group have been opposed to the plans.

Shortly after the White House meeting broke up, the Senate

Negroes May Be Turned White By New Chemical, One Claims

(Story embargoed by Look Magazine for use in continental United States only.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—(P)—Walter White, prominent white-skinned Negro leader, said today the color line may be ended by a chemical which sometimes turns skin from black to white.

White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, made the prediction in an article in Look Magazine.

The chemical now is dangerous to use, but White wrote "it's almost a certainty that a safe form x x x will be on sale within two to ten years."

Negroes then could have white or light skin if they wished, he said, and "the racial, social, economic and political consequences would be tremendous."

White, 56 years old and estimated to be only 1-64th Negro, was married to a white woman on July 6 and they now are on a round-the-world trip. His bride is the former Poppy Cannon, 42, food editor of Mademoiselle Magazine.

A New York skin specialist told the Associated Press that "nobody can turn white from using the drug at present," and attempts to change the color of Negro skin have not succeeded.

New Ailment Resembles Polio

Results of Malady Are Less Serious

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 16—(P)—Yale scientists expressed belief today that a large number of cases diagnosed as poliomyelitis may actually be attributable to a new and apparently non-crippling virus.

Existence of the virus, first reported by the New York State Department of Health, was confirmed by the Yale researchers after a year's study.

Isolated during last summer's polio outbreak in southern New England, North Carolina and Texas, the origin of the virus still is unknown and its means of transmission are obscure. But the Yale scientists reported that all infected persons who have come to their attention have recovered with no harmful after-effects.

A report of the Yale research was published today in the proceedings of the society for experimental biology and medicine. Commenting on the report, Joseph L. Melnick, associate professor of microbiology, declared:

"It is believed this new virus was the cause of widespread illness last year during the poliomyelitis season. Last year there were about 28,000 cases in the United States which were reported as poliomyelitis, the largest number since 1916."

"On the basis of this research at Yale, it is believed a sizeable percentage of these cases may have been falsely diagnosed as poliomyelitis and were actually attributable to this new virus."

"We have reason to think this may be a fairly common disease, and with this new information physicians, working in conjunction with virologists in poliomyelitis areas, may have available a valuable new tool for specific diagnosis."

Two New York scientists published the first description of the virus. They were Gilbert Dallorf and Grace Sickles of the state health department at Albany.

They said the virus was isolated from a child who had been hospitalized for a year because of a severe case of poliomyelitis.

The child, who was born in 1937, was hospitalized in 1948 because of a severe case of poliomyelitis.

'Gone with the Wind' Author Dies of Injuries - - Hit by Car

ATLANTA, Aug. 16—(P)—Margaret Mitchell, the author of "Gone With the Wind," died today. She was struck down by a speeding automobile on Peachtree Street last Thursday night.

Miss Mitchell died at 11:59 A. M. (EST) in Henry Grady Memorial Hospital. Doctors said she had a fractured skull, fractures of the pelvis, and other injuries.

The quiet author of the famous Civil War novel was hit by a car as she and her husband, John R. Marsh, an advertising executive, crossed the street while walking to a movie near her home.

Police charged the driver of the car, Hugh D. Gravitt, 28, with suspicion of manslaughter. Gravitt, a taxi driver, was off duty at the time and in his private car. Police records show he has had 23 traffic violations previously against him.

The speeding car slammed her to the pavement and dragged her 15 feet.

Marsh, a semi-invalid as the result of a heart attack, held his wife in his arms until police and an ambulance arrived. She was carried to the City Hospital and specialists were called.

The hospital listed Miss Mitchell's age as 43.

Margaret Mitchell turned the Civil War tales she heard as a child into "Gone With the Wind," a book outsold only by the Bible.

But she scoffed at any idea it was an easy job.

"Actually, I began writing at the age of six years. I worked 12 years on 'Gone With the Wind' and threw away a lot of novels I had written before that," she once said.

Miss Mitchell began her career as a newspaper feature writer.

Lieutenant Governor Linked in Land Suit

WAVERLY, Aug. 16—(P)—A taxpayer has charged in a suit filed in Pike County common pleas court that county officials illegally built two roads in Lt. Gov. George D. Nye's real estate development near Lake White.

Kenneth Litterst, who filed the suit, named as defendants County Commissioners Roy H. Smith, Louis C. Brushart and Floyd E. Thompson, Auditor Wilbur M. Cool and Engineer Wesley L. Sheridan.

Litterst's petition said one route, 7 of a mile long, intersects state route 552 and the other, about a mile long, runs to Inspiration Point Road at the edge of the Lake White state park.

Litterst said he had asked Prosecutor Wray Bevins, in writing, to file the suit but that Bevins had taken no action.

W. T. Reed, counsel for Litterst, charged that the officials:

1. Did not follow proper procedure in providing funds for construction of the roads;

2. Failed to publicize notice of the construction;

3. Failed to state public need for the routes;

4. Failed to instruct the county engineer to make an accurate survey.

The suit asks a court order to restrain further expenditure of county funds.

Americans Hunted In Soviet Germany

FRANKFORT, Germany, Aug. 16—(P)—With few clues, police pressed a search today for two young Americans who disappeared six days ago while cycling near the Soviet zone border of Germany.

Brig Gen. Norman H. Schwarzkopf, U. S. army deputy provost marshal in Germany, said all police in western Germany had been alerted.

He said that, as far as he knew, Russian authorities had not been notified because there was no definite evidence the young tourists had gone into the Soviet zone.

The cyclists, Warren Oelsner, 20, of Benton Harbor, Mich., and Peter H. Sellers, 18, of Philadelphia, last were definitely seen in the British zone near the Soviet zone frontier.

No record had been found of their ever leaving Germany through any of the normal crossing places.

The state says Torrence promised to marry Miss Stella Hill and became engaged to her.

Then, says the commonwealth, he got $2,000 from her on June 9 and $550 on June 17. For this he showed Miss Hill a fraudulent deed to some land in Florida's Seale County, the state charges.

The deed allegedly was made out to Torrence and to Miss Hill. Torrence said he wanted the money to develop a hotel corporation, the state charges.

Texas and Ohio have bids in also for prosecution of Torrence. In each state authorities say he swindled women who met him through lonely hearts clubs.

Torrence was arrested on July 15 after railroad detectives said he tried to pick up a woman in Gate City's railroad station.

From Torrence's suitcase fell some 300 love letters, officials said when they searched his effects.

Torrence's slim, blonde, common-law wife showed up after his arrest and confinement in Wytheville jail. Identified as Mildred Beaumont Torrence, 28, she was arrested and taken to Pittsburgh on charge she was implicated with Torrence in a swindle there.

Gambling Joint Given Business By Gov. Lausche

State Inspectors Start Work—Village Mayor Put on Spot

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16—(P)—The Jungle Inn gambling casino will be padlocked as a public nuisance, State Industrial Relations Director Albert A. Woldman said today.

Woldman said he would issue an order closing the club on two counts:

(1) The inn buildings do not conform to the state building code, and (2) the inn is a public nuisance.

The order against the Halls Corners gaming establishment was similar to the order that closed the plush Mounds Club in Lake County near Cleveland last month.

Woldman said his order probably would be issued later this week.

The director said three of his men visited the inn the day before the state liquor agents pulled a surprise raid last Friday night.

Woldman said the order would be issued the Army and Navy Union Garrison 504. That is the proper name for the inn, which is known generally by its nickname "The Jungle Inn."

INSPECTIONS STARTED

WARREN, Aug. 16—(P)—State officials were granted a court order to reenter the Jungle Inn at Halls Corners today. At the same time gambling charges were filed against 20 men arrested in a raid on the casino Friday night.

The order unloading the casino for inspection was granted in common pleas court by Judge Lynn Griffith.

The order was requested by State Fire Marshal Harry Callan and Robert Skipton, acting chief of the division of factory and building inspection.

Callan tried to inspect the place last night on orders of Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

Officers Barred

The inn was locked, barred and deserted except for the two aged caretakers relaxing in chairs outside the building. All the inspectors could do was look over the building's exterior.

Prosecuting Attorney William McClain filed the charges against the 20 arrested men. Eighteen arrested in the main building were charged with three counts of gambling. Two arrested in the restaurant building were charged with two gambling counts each.

All 20 were charged specifically with keeping a room and building to be used or occupied for gambling and with exhibiting gambling devices for gain.

The third count on the 18 was playing games for money and making wagers for money.

Arraignment on the charges is scheduled for 9 A. M. Friday in common pleas court.

Successful Pattern

The inspection move followed the same pattern applied successfully in shutting down the Mounds Club near Painesville, in Lake County, more than a month ago. It was closed as a fire hazard.

In Columbus, Gov. Lausche's office announced the citation suspending Mayor Charles E. Sedore of Hall's Corners was served on the mayor at midnight last night by members of the State Highway Patrol.

The citation calls on the mayor to show cause why he should not be removed for tolerating the existence of the Jungle Inn.

The citation also orders Sedore to appear before the governor for a hearing at 10 A. M., Aug. 31.

Legal Attack Planned

Attorney Russell Mock of Youngstown, representing the Jungle Inn, said today he was conferring with associates regarding the possibility of attacking the legality of the "entire procedure with reference to the Jungle Inn" raid.

He said attorneys especially are considering the right of Judge Griffith to designate Anthony J. Rutkowski, state liquor enforcement chief, as a bailiff of the common pleas court here—giving him jurisdiction to lead the Friday night raid.

Rutkowski obtained a search warrant for the raid from Judge Griffith.

It was understood Mock would question Rutkowski's right to lead the raid on grounds he is a resident of Cleveland and not of Trumbull County.

Unemployment Law Effective On August 22

Changes Affect 3,378
Workers Employed
In This County

The first of a special series of articles dealing with the amended Ohio Unemployment Compensation Law has just been received by Ward C. Miller, manager of the BUC office here. Miller stated that this amended law will effect some 3,378 workers in Fayette County.

In Ohio more than 2,000,000 workers in employment subject to the Unemployment Compensation Law will be affected by a number of major changes in that law which become effective Monday, August 22.

Generally speaking, workers concerned are those in the employ of employers hiring three or more persons. Exceptions include governmental, agricultural, railroad and domestic workers as well as those employed by religious and charitable organizations.

The changes, based upon amendments enacted during the recent legislative session, involve important additions to both the worker's rights and obligations under the Unemployment Compensation Law. Among the requirements a worker must meet to be eligible for benefits under the amended law are the following:

He must have been in employment covered by the Ohio law in 14 weeks during his base period and must have earned $240 or more in that period. The base period of a benefit applicant includes the first four of the last five completed calendar quarters immediately preceding the first day of the week in which he files a valid claim.

He must be actively seeking suitable work. In determining whether or not a job is suitable, the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation's administrator must take into consideration the worker's prior training and experience, the degree of risk to his health, safety and morals, his physical fitness for the work involved and other factors.

He must be able to obtain suitable work.

He must accept an offer of suitable work when directed to do so by a public employment center and must not turn down any referral to such suitable work.

He must be able and available for suitable work.

He must sign an affidavit to the effect that he neither advocates the overthrow of the U. S. Government by force nor belongs to an organization which advocates such action.

In addition to setting forth the above requirements for unemployment benefits, the amended law also provides that no person may be paid benefits for any period of unemployment if:

Such unemployment is directly due to a labor dispute.

The claimant knowingly makes a false statement or fails to report a material fact relative to such unemployment.

The claimant fails or refuses to report to the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation or any of its designated agencies as required by the BUC's rules.

The claimant leaves his job to attend school or because of marital, parental, filial or other domestic obligations.

The claimant is discharged for dishonesty in connection with his work or becomes unemployed by reason of commitment to a penal institution.

Keynote of the tributes was sounded at the Mayer luncheon by Billie Burke:

"We are paying homage to the most beautiful woman and the finest actress of our day. You don't just love and admire Ethel Barrymore; you worship her."

Noise Crusade Is Drawing Attention

The anti-noise move in Circleville, where officials have launched a move to reduce unnecessary noise by motor vehicles, is moving forward with good results, according to reports from that city, and officials of other cities are watching results of the crusade.

One truck driver said his truck was without a muffler because "the boss" had removed it.

Warning slips have been issued to truck drivers and others whose vehicles make unnecessary noise, and already results are becoming apparent.

The "crack down" date has been set for August 25, when the warnings will cease and arrests will begin, Circleville Police Chief William McReady, has stated.

Efforts are being made to have the highway patrol and Sheriff Charles Radcliff, to join in the move to reduce noise made by motor vehicles.

Five-Percent Probe

Waitt had "cut the throats" of his brother officers who might succeed him as the army's chemical chief.

Waitt also acknowledged writing another memorandum which gave a highly flattering report on himself. It was written in the third person and he testified it was prepared for Vaughan to hand to President Truman as Vaughan's evaluation of Waitt.

Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) noted that Waitt, in the report, described himself as one of the world's leading experts on toxicological warfare.

Waitt laughed nervously and then said:

"That is most embarrassing. But it happens to be true."

Waitt, squirmed in his chair and still laughing, said:

"Pravda (Soviet newspaper) has called me the savage General Waitt. Moscow radio has called me a cannibal."

Waitt and Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, quartermaster general, were suspended July 16 by Secretary of the Army Gray pending further investigation. Gray acted after the names of the two officers were brought out in the Senate inquiry.

Waitt today called Hunt "a close personal friend." Before Waitt testified, Lt. Col. Roy T. Evans testified that Hunt claimed to have been responsible for Waitt's appointment as chemical chief.

Evans said Hunt, former officer in the quartermaster corps, made the claim at a social gathering within the last year and half. He said Hunt tried to "impress people" that he knew many prominent persons.

Evans said Hunt also said at the party that he was responsible for the appointment of Tighe Woods as housing expediter, and Jess Larson as war assets administrator. Hunt formerly was special consultant for the WAA.

opened debate on Mr. Truman's reorganization plan No. 1. This calls for a new department of welfare.

Plan No. 2, next on the Senate schedule, would shift the bureau of employment security from the federal security administration to the labor department.

Today's conference was President Truman's second move within four days in behalf of the two plans. In a letter to Vice President Barkley Friday, the president declared that objections raised against the plans appeared to him "ill-founded and mistaken."

"If plans such as these are rejected," Mr. Truman said then "a serious blow will be dealt to the prospects for further progress."

The fate of plan No. 1 in the Senate rested on whether foes could muster 49 votes against it.

High School Stands Condemned as Unsafe

MOUNT VERNON, Aug. 16—(AP)—The wooden stands of Mt. Vernon High School's football field have been condemned, school Supt. John D. Geiger said last night.

The condemnation came from Henry J. Bayer of Newark, state building inspector for the area.

Bayer's oral report, said Supt. Geiger, was that "the entire stands will have to be torn down." The stands cost 2,000.

The Board of Education began planning rebuilding the bleachers.

Oats followed the lead of corn in a modest manner, but when wheat declined near the close all deliveries slumped.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—(P)—The appendix in man is looked upon as a nuisance that sometimes gets very stirred up.

But the appendix in the back of the congressional record is where a lot of Congressmen get stirred up.

And they don't look on that appendix as a nuisance, although somebody other than a congressman might.

For a congressman the appendix is a good place to let off steam.

The record itself, published every day, is the word by word account of everything that happens on the floors of Congress.

But the stuff in the appendix is something a congressman wants to get into print and not something he said on the floor.

There he can insert a newspaper editorial that's plugging something he's plugging himself, and likes the support.

Or, he may stick in a speech by some friend of his. Or, maybe it's a speech the congressman made at a graduation and he likes it so much he wants it in print.

And when the congressman can't get enough time on the floor to finish the speech, he finishes by getting it in the appendix.

Since the whole record is printed by the government every day Congress is in session, what gets into the appendix costs the taxpayers money.

A Congressman can't just send something down to the printer and get it into the appendix.

First, he has to ask for the unanimous consent of all the Congressmen or Senators present on the floor.

Unanimous consent is always given, since sooner or later everybody present will want to get something into the appendix himself.

For example, in the most recent record—it came out Saturday and contains Friday's doings—here are a few things:

It opens with a statement by Senator Humphrey, Minnesota Democrat, who said:

"Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the appendix of the record a commencement address delivered by me at Bennington College, Bennington, Vt., on July 1, 1949."

No explanation was given for why the senator waited so long to get a July 1 speech printed in mid-August.

He may have thought it was quite a piece and ought to be preserved for posterity, or maybe he just remembered it because the senator makes quite a few speeches.

Anyhow, there followed four columns on education, democracy, loyalty, and other things.

Then Senator Pepper, Florida Democrat, got a column-and-a-half piece into the appendix.

This was a job by a columnist who recalled what it was like in the depression days under the Republicans.

Rep. Boykin, Alabama Democrat who apparently thinks very highly of Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, inserted a two-column editorial which agreed with Boykin that Johnson is a great man.

Followed a blast at the State

African Exhibit On Display At Library Here

Leopard Skin, Native Artifacts Sent To Yvo Wain by Brother

You don't have to go to "dark-est Africa" by either boat or book, now.

Africa has been brought to you in the form of a vicious leopard in the Carnegie Public Library here.

But don't be afraid. There is nothing inside the spotted skin that covers a shelf in the library's display case.

It was sent to Rev. Yvo Wain, who lives west of Washington C. H., by his brother, a Methodist missionary in Africa.

Bishop Wain sent the leopard skin and many other products of native handiwork from Angola, the country in which he is stationed.

He reports Angola to be a very interesting place. You've probably never heard of it but don't write it off as a whistle stop.

Eleven Ohio could be placed inside Angola's borders with over 28,000 square miles to spare!

Angola belongs to Portugal and is located on the southwestern coast of Africa. It contained three and a half million natives and 39,000 Europeans in 1936. Ohio's population is twice that.

Sidelight Stories
Miss Mary Elizabeth Johnson, librarian, related a few interesting stories which Rev. Wain received from his brother in connection with some of the articles on display.

She said the animal skin is from a type of leopard which is untamable. The animal lives on other game and will attack humans.

A long, curved claw visible on a hind paw is evidence of its killing ability. The hide is about five feet long.

Miss Johnson pointed to a strange-looking piece of native

Department's "White Paper" on China by a congressman who didn't like it; Senator Pepper appeared again with a speech he made on world federation on Aug. 8; another blast at the State Department for its policy on China; and so it went, for 34 triple-column pages.

Bishop Wain politely refused

woodcarving that resembled a curycomb.

She said it is a hair brush but doubted whether many Americans would use it. It is shaped like our hairbrushes but the surface of the wood is studded with rows of sharp bamboo points a fraction of an inch long.

She explained that the natives have such thick kinky hair that lice and other itchy insects make it their home.

But butter grease and this tortuous-looking hairbrush are used to clean the hair. It leaves ridges in the hair—"just like a marcel wave," says Miss Johnson.

Woven Grass Plate
Included in the display is an eating plate woven out of grass roots. Stained roots are used in weaving designs into their products.

The root is stained by burying it in a swamp.

There is also a woven circular pad which is placed on the head for carrying burdens.

Also lying on the leopard skin is a long, wooden ornamental comb that resembles the shorter combs worn by American women. That brings up the question "who copied whom?"

Bishop Wain wrote of one experience he had when he found an injured native lying along the roadside. He got the man medical aid in time to save his life.

While later visiting the native, Bishop Wain admired a huge bellows standing by the man's fireplace. The grateful native insisted that the missionary accept the bellows as a gift.

Bishop Wain politely refused

any reward for the help given in line of duty but remarked that he had a brother back in the U. S. A. who could use a small bellows.

The native wasted no time in making the bellows which is now on display on the bottom of the showcase.

Amazing Weaving Shell
Bishop Wain wrote of the amazing weaving skill of even the most backward of the natives. He said they can just look at a design and then sit down and weave a copy of it.

The missionaries furnish practically the only education available to the natives. There are no high schools in the entire country, Miss Johnson said she had been told.

The Portuguese have owned Angola since the year 1575 and the natives apparently resent the long years of exploitation by the white man.

Most of the diamonds mined there are sent to Belgium and gold has been found also.

The natives react quickly to any white stranger who picks up even worthless pebbles in front of them. The stranger has to do a lot of quick talking to the native chiefs to get away safely, says Miss Johnson.

Bishop Wain also mounted and labeled some rare leaves and sent

Nurses Adopt Constitution

Name of Organization Changed at Meeting

An important move towards making the nurses association a more potent force in Fayette County was taken Monday night when the constitution was adopted and the name of the organization changed.

Twelve nurses from around the county voted unanimously to call their organization the Fayette County Professional Nurses Association.

A few Angolan minerals—copper and iron ore, volcanic rock and a few varieties of clay. These are displayed in the lobby of the library.

A few books have been placed on top of the showcase to round out the display. Memories will be refreshed by the title of one of them, "Stanley and Livingstone in Africa."

One Drive A Year Sentiment Growing

Recent plans and organization effected to bring about combining most of the many annual drives for money in this community, probably will be brought strongly to public attention within a few weeks by the newly formed Community Chest organization.

There is decided sentiment expressed by hundreds of donors in this city and county to the effect that many charities and other good causes which have staged many drives here within the last few years, may have to change their methods, or at least their timing.

The number of such campaigns has increased sharply in recent years. Not only has this meant repeated appeals to the same contributors, but usually the same solicitors have been drawn from their regular duties more often than is fair to them.

Among state-wide comments heard regarding this has come a statement from the solicitations director of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce to the effect that there will be a refusal on the part of business houses and industrial plants there to permit more than one solicitation a year for their employees. This is not quite the same thing as a Community Chest, where all institutions pool their requests and only one gift is required from a donor, but it is similar.

Certainly the number of separate drives for funds should be sharply reduced. Institutions standing out from this reasonable position are doing questionable good to themselves and the whole philanthropic structure.

What is happening in Cleveland and other large cities is true to a lesser degree in Washington C. H. and Fayette County and other smaller places.

It is to be hoped that sufficient interest will be aroused in this community to effect a considerable change here in the coming months.

"1984"—How Near Is It?

The current best-selling novel, "Nineteen Eighty-Four," describes the author's conception of life in the not-to-distant future. It is a sharply regimented life, with regulations sternly governing every section of thought and action. Literature, industry, the arts must all conform—or else the rebel is "vaporized".

Unfortunately, there is evidence that "1984" may be just around the corner. The British Institute of International Affairs reports that the countries behind the Iron Curtain are face to face with a crisis of almost incredible proportions. Rapid agrarian reforms in many countries of Eastern Europe have pushed literally millions of people into positions where they lack all social and economic status. Farmers in many countries of the Eastern European area are reportedly in rebellion against the changes thrust upon them. A possible ten million unemployed and seemingly unwanted peasants may find themselves thrown into slave labor camps as the pressure of hunger and unrest mounts rapidly. For the regime which has collectivized agriculture will brook no opposition. It will drive them into the equivalent of slavery rather than permit the development of any significant opposition. If such a condition is permitted to occur in this century, we may be entering a new era of darkness rather than an age of brilliant human evolution.

Many of the modern automobiles start themselves, shift themselves and stand still on hills—but the steering is not yet automatic.

Diet and Health Simple Treatment For Floating Kidney

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NORMALLY, the kidney, though not fixed, is held firmly in position by the tissues around it, particularly the layers of fat in which it is packed. Sometimes, however, in very thin individuals, this support is lacking and the kidney becomes freely movable. The resulting condition is known as renal ptosis or floating kidney.

Floating kidney most often develops in extremely underweight women between the ages of 30 and 50. The symptoms, which are much like those occurring in colitis, including a dragging sensation in the abdomen, nervousness, backache, sickness at the stomach and vomiting. One frequent symptom is pain in the kidney area, passing forward and downward. It is brought on by unusual exercise or hard work, and relieved by lying down.

Urinary Symptoms About one out of five patients with floating kidney complain of such urinary symptoms as frequent emptying of the bladder, pain on emptying the bladder, and the necessity for emptying the bladder at night.

On the other hand, in about one-third of the cases of floating kidney, the symptoms present do not seem to be related in any way to the kidney.

But here is encouraging news. Most of the patients with floating kidney can be relieved by simple means. Often, the patient finds that the wearing of a supportive belt gives relief, although such a belt cannot keep the kidney in place. Improvements in the diet with gains in weight, reducing the amount of work, and increasing the periods of rest and recreation, are a definite help in many cases.

An Operation

Sometimes, operation may be required. However, it should be done only when the patient's symptoms are definitely shown to be due to dropping of the kidney and there is evidence of interference with the normal kidney function.

Out of 21 patients who were operated on to fix the kidney in place, 11 had relief from their symptoms. Ten were not benefited. Of the 11 who obtained relief, only 3 were completely and permanently cured.

Before a diagnosis of floating kidney can be made, a careful X-ray study must be carried out and tests of the kidney function employed. If the diagnosis is established, the doctor will decide just what type of treatment will be most useful.

Against Orders, but Battle Won

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK—(AP)—Gen. J. Lawton Collins, the new army chief of staff, earned his nickname "Lightning Joe"—on many battlefields.

The graying, 53-year-old soldier—one of the handsomest men in the army—was one of the most colorful and energetic field commanders of the second World War.

He was tough and cool and won his battles first-hand. He ran his famous Seventh Corps as efficiently as any top business executive. An all-around soldier, he could plan a battle, fight it through—encourage his own frontline troops with his presence.

This was his battle formula: "Outguess the enemy, keep him off balance and never stop driving."

Some generals are boxers, and some are punchers. "Lightning Joe" is a puncher. It was his faculty of sustained drive that led Gen. Omar Nelson Bradley to give him the critical battle assignments that built his fame.

And few generals in American history can match his combat record. His victories stretch from Guadalcanal to the Elbe. Collins came to Europe after successfully completing the mop-up of Japanese on Guadalcanal and New Guinea.

His Seventh Corps seized Utah Beach in Normandy. It freed Cherbourg, the first French metropolis liberated from the Nazis. It broke the crust at St. Lo. It was first to crack the Siegfried line and capture a major German city—Aachen. It took Cologne, too, expanded the first bridgehead across the Rhine at Remagen, and at war's end linked up with the Russians along the Elbe.

But "Lightning Joe," who never dodged a scrap, once got into a fight he wasn't looking for. It happened in the "Battle of the Bulge" in Belgium in December, 1944. The German breakthrough imperiled the American line of communications, and Gen. Eisenhower temporarily put his First and Ninth armies under the field leadership of Field Marshal Montgomery.

Monty immediately named "Lightning Joe" to head a reserve corps. This corps was to be used as a counterblow at the right time—when the German drive had been contained. But in the meantime it was under strict orders to refrain from attack.

One of the outfits in the reserve corps was the "Hell on Wheels" Second Armored Division led by

Maj. Gen. Ernie "Old Gravel Voice" Harmon.

After a spectacular 100-mile night march, Harmon's tankers reached their assembly area near Celles, Belgium. Then they started to run into German outposts. Moving more swiftly than expected, the Nazis were only a few miles from the Meuse River. If they reached it and took Dinant, the American armies would be split in half.

Harmon immediately relayed this information to Collins, who asked:

"What do you want to do, Ernie?"

"I want to attack, but we're under orders not to," said Harmon. "And there isn't time to get the orders changed."

"Go ahead, Ernie," said Collins. "I'll take the responsibility."

In a grand grinding battle, fought in snow and fog, Harmon's division annihilated the German armor—and halted the German thrust.

Field Marshal Montgomery, angered at first because he thought his orders had been disregarded, sent a rebuke through channels. But when he learned the full story he sent his compliments to Collins and Harmon.

The battle had turned out to be one of "Lightning Joe's" best blitzes.

Here's Some More on Dr. Wirt

By George E. Sokolsky

Mr. William B. Woodbury writes me as follows:

"We knew Dr. William Wirt intimately and liked him as a neighbor and associate. He had a nice property here to which he brought his family year after year when his duties as superintendent of the public schools at Gary, Indiana, were over till fall term. Dr. Wirt also had, at one time extensive and valuable real estate holdings in Gary. When he divulged the chatter that went on at party at Georgetown the 'new deal' set out to 'get him.'"

"Henry Ford (the late) furnished him with legal counsel in person of former U. S. senator Jim Reed of Missouri, Democrat, who was one of the ablest and most powerful lawyers in American public life at the time. Even Reed was moved down with scant courtesy and Dr. Wirt was made out to be an irresponsible fuss budget."

"We knew here of his intensive patriotism and felt he was telling the truth which was, of course, distasteful to the Red Lunatic fringe so zealously courted by the late F. D. R.

"After trying to make a monkey out of Dr. Wirt before the committee of the U. S. Senate and holding him up to ridicule to the country, they did not stop there. The bank examiners were turned loose on the banks in Gary and elsewhere, who had advanced money on the Wirt real estate operations. His loans were called, his properties sold and he was ruined. His property here at Diamond Point was sold for taxes, his two children, a son and a daughter, and wife impoverished, and Dr. Wirt and his wife died of a broken heart."

Pretty tough, that. And then I came across a clipping in which Congressman John O'Connor, who was the second ranking member of the committee that heard Wirt's charges, said:

"The procedural motion, which I personally presented, limited the hearings to an examination of Dr. Wirt under oath to bring out the names and the exact statements of his informants. Over the protests of the minority members, any examination of 'other persons, connected in any way with said activities, was precluded."

"Dr. Wirt was not allowed to have his counsel cross-examine witnesses, nor was he called in rebuttal after they had presented their 'well-staged' denials."

"I use the word 'well-staged' advisedly because it was known that at least six of them met and rehearsed their denials of what they had told Dr. Wirt."

Many of the men, now up on disloyalty charges, who object to the methods of the House committee on Un-American Activities, were responsible, in 1934 for the destruction, physically, and mentally, of this fine American, Henry Wallace, for instance, laughed Wirt's charges off, by saying:

"It is amazing the state of mind that newspapers can create at times."

William Wirt, himself, said, in 1934:

"I am not seeing red, nor am I going around looking under beds for Fascists and Communists. I am not engaged in a manhunt."

"I just want to call national attention to the fact that so-called 'intellectual radicals' are changing government without a revolution of bloodshed."

"I believe that as American citizens, we should be permitted to discuss government openly and freely and change the form if we want to do so."

If we look at that picture in 1949, we know that Dr. William Wirt of Gary, Indiana, was telling the truth and that he was destroyed for telling the truth. His main targets were Henry Wallace and Rexford G. Tugwell. Where are they now? Henry Wallace is the darling—and also the prisoner—of the Communists, following every twist and turn of their international policy and Tugwell is forgotten as a political figure, although he was for a short time resuscitated to head the resolutions committee of the 1948 Progressive convention.

When the Wirt episode is studied in relationship to the testimony of Louis Budenz, Elizabeth Bentley, Whittaker Chambers, Henry Julian Wadsworth, and with what is being disclosed at the trial of the 12 Communist leaders in New York, it is clear that the United States was being fouled by some of its officials in the 1930's. Foul is a mild term for betrayal.

Snake Interrupts Work for Moment; Gets Decapitated

"One of them pressed the long board against the snake and the other one cut off the snake's head with a hatchet."

That's what Ray Anders and his son, Harold, wound up doing after starting out with the harmless task of removing a window.

They were out on the Alpha Farms near Waterloo, taking some windows they had bought from an unused house.

They had taken one window out and, becoming so absorbed in their work, did not notice a large blacksnake coiled up on the top of the frame until they laid it down.

That's where their attention was diverted.

They left the room immediately to find a suitable weapon and came back with the long board and hatchet.

The snake by now had crawled into a corner and Anders and his son used the board to pin the snake before the head-cutting operation.

Measurement of the snake: two inches around and four feet, seven and a half inches long!

"Caution" is the word around the Anders' Mt. Sterling household today.

Post script: Naturalists say the blacksnake is harmless—except to nerves—and that it is a big help in ridding the world of harmful rodents and such.

Albers Market Is Undergoing Many Changes

Self-Service Being Installed With All New Fixtures

"When we get through making changes and installing new equipment, the cash registers will be just about the only thing left that has been in use" said Floyd Fulkerson, general manager of Albert Supermarket, which is now undergoing radical changes to modernize the store and provide better service.

All new and strictly modern fixtures are being installed, with self-service throughout, including the meat and vegetable departments, and this has necessitated installation of extensive new refrigerating units.

All old counters and display cases have been supplanted with new gondola cases, which not only display goods to better advantage, but hold larger stocks. About the walls the new white monolithic shelving adds to the general attractiveness of the store, and all new fixtures are in white, some with black trimming.

The interior of the store has been changed so extensively that it does not resemble the former store, and some departments have been switched to other parts of the store from where they have been located.

W. A. Heath, supervisor for this district, has been giving personal attention to the complete installation of new fixtures, and rearrangement of the store.

The various departments will be indicated in large letters, and indirect lighting is being installed wherever necessary to better light the goods.

The new meat cases are self-

Kute Kiddie Contest Gets Under Way Here

Photographers started shooting pictures today of youngsters under six years of age who will compete in the second annual Kute Kiddie Shop photo contest.

The photographers operated in a mobile studio, which they drove to the homes of various contestants in Fayette County.

The contest will last until September, when plans have been made to hold a final judging before the public in some Washington C. H. theatre to determine the grand winner.

Finalists will be determined from photographs being taken by Jack and Jill Mobile Studio from Columbus. Sponsor of the contest is the Kute Kiddie Shop, 116 West Court Street.

Plans have been made for a committee of three judges, to be selected by Victor Smith, proprietor of the Kute Kiddie Shop, to choose the 10 finalists.

Pictures of the finalists will be displayed later in the Kute Kiddie Shop.

The Columbus photographers will take four poses of each child, with the parents to select what

VFW Edges NCR 6-4 While Hughey Romps

Paul Hughey tightened his hold on second place as they pounded out a 17-4 victory over Homer Lawson in the nightcap of a Recreation League twin-bill at Wilson Field.

The opener found two well-matched teams clash and the VFW emerged on top by a 6-4 score, handing NCR its 14th loss. In the all-veteran second game, the Hughey Legion moved within three games of the front-running Drakes by virtue of their win.

The Hughey Legion's win in the second game moved them up a half-game from the three trailing teams thirsting for second place.

Post 25 made it short and sweet as they took advantage of Lawson's misplays and erroneous judgement on a few thrown to score three times in the first and seven in the second.

The fans went home early as the Lawson outfit loosened up in the fourth and Hughey rammed seven more across to establish a ten-run margin which, by the rules, shortens the game to five innings.

The Lawson club played well in spots but the spots were too far apart. Chase pitched effectively, limiting the losers to four hits. Morgan and Mark clubbed triples for Hughey while doubles were cracked out by Allen, Mitchell, P. Gray and Card.

The longest blow was a circuit clout by Morgan, while Bentley got the most hits, three for four. Hughey plays the VFW Wednesday and Heinz on Friday in the games which will decide its final ranking in the league.

It's too late for VFW to improve its position but they certainly worsened NCR's in their triumph in the opener.
NCR took a one-run lead in the opening inning but the legion came back with three in the second and added two more in the fourth to take a lead they never relinquished.
D. Conway took th rubber and gave up six hits in winning.

Trophies Presented Softball Champions

Cherry Hill's Cardinals today were proudly wearing miniature softballs, symbols of the championship of the Kids League, and three other youthful athletes could gaze with the same sort of satisfaction at the trophies, symbols of batting prowess, standing in prominent places in their homes.

The presentation of the awards were made Monday night between the games of the double bill softball card at Wilson Field.

Just after the VFW had trounced the NCR outfit, and just before the Hughey Legionnaires defeated the Lawson Legion team, Fred Pierson, the city recreation director, presented the awards.

Statuettes of a softball player, mounted on a pedestal, were presented to Lyle Self and Roger Mills, who tied for the batting championship of the Junior Knighthole League, and to Jack Rettig, the top hitter of the Senior Knighthole League.

The miniature softball—the kind that can be worn on a little chain—were given to the Cardinals who won the Junior Knighthole League Championship for Cherry Hill from the teams representing the city's other four elementary schools.

The ceremony was a part of the recreation program now nearing the end of its fourth season.

Reds Blow To Pirates In One Big Bad Inning

By RALPH RODEN
(By the Associated Press)
The Redlegs of Cincinnati came up with one bad inning of ball last night and it started them on their way to a 9-7 loss to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Rhinelanders held a 5-3 lead after a four-run, fifth inning, highlighted by Danny Litwhiler's three run homer, but the roof fell in on them in the next round.

Three singles, including a high fly which dropped between Bobby Adams and Litwhiler for a base hit, produced two runs. Red Stallcup then threw wild to home in an effort to cut down Dixie Walker and that heave added up to two more runs.

Starter Herm Wehmeier finished out the inning but gave way to a pinch batter in the seventh. Three more Cincinnati pitchers, Bud Lively, Ewell Blackwell and Eddie Erazo, paraded to the mound and the Pirates were able to score their final two markers off Erazo in the ninth.

Rip Sewell, who took over from Pirate starter Bill Werle in the fifth, stayed out of serious trouble until the ninth. Grady Hatton homered one of Rip's pitches into Washington. Dobson led 1-0, going into the ninth, when the Senators squared matters.

The Senators took a 2-1 lead in the 11th with former Soxer Sam Dente singling home Johnny Simmons from second, but Boston tagged Hudson in the last half of the payoff runs on doubles by Billy Goodman, Dom DiMaggio and a single by Ted Williams. Williams' hit, his lone safety of the evening, broke up the game.

The Athletics came from behind to nip the Yanks, scoring five runs in the sixth inning to overcome a 5-4 deficit. Rookie righthander Duane Pillette was the victim of the uprising. Eddie Joost singled home the tying run. Ferris Fain singled across two more and Sam Chapman doubled in another paid to clinch matters. Carl Scheib started and finished for the A's and the triumph evened his record at 8-8.

Indians Beat Tigers
Cleveland's third place team also kept its hat in the ring. Shading the Detroit Tigers, 4-3, in ten innings at Cleveland. The Indians are four games away from the promised land.

Bobby Feller beat Lefty Hal Newhouse in the tight encounter that ended when pinch-hitter Hal Peck singled with the bases loaded and one out in the tenth. The victory was Feller's sixth straight and 12th of the year.

The best-pitched game of the evening was turned in by Lefty Billy Wright of the Chicago White Sox, who turned back the Browns, 8-0 on two hits in St. Louis.

Harry (The Cat) Brecheen hurled the St. Louis Cardinals to within a half game of the National League's front-running Brooklyn Dodgers as he pitched the Cards to a 5-2 triumph over the Chicago Cubs in the majors lone day game.

Brecheen limited the Cubs to six hits and collected three of the Cards' 12 blows. Stan Musial poled his 20th homer and a single and climbed into baseball's big six for the first time this season. Musial ranks third in the league with a .317 mark.

Brooklyn, the New York Giants, Philadelphia Phillies and Boston Braves enjoyed an off day.

CHAPTER FORTY-SEVEN

There was a rustle behind the swinging door that led to the kitchen. Mrs. Crane poked her head in. "Mr. Coomes, you want supper now—just the same?"

She must have heard it all, Marvell thought. It doesn't matter. He picked up the glass and the bottle. "One for me. Call Miss Kit when it's ready." He groped his way in the dark to the living room. It doesn't matter, he kept repeating, don't let it matter. He lit the lamp, and the geraniums on the window sill leaped into color. He poured himself a drink and sat down heavily in a rocking chair. The room with its tidies, its plants and white curtained windows was comforting. He raised his glass and set it down without drinking. The smell gagged him. He rocked in silence. Here was a room to which he was almost a stranger. Why, then, did it make him feel so much at home?

The pattern was familiar. Then he remembered—it was like his mother's house in Castine. That was where he had first seen pink geraniums and dotted muslin curtains. We should have gone down there, he thought, nothing could have happened to us there. He tried to recall when his mother had died. A couple of years after Kit had been born, perhaps. It seemed a long, long time ago. Elizabeth and he had gone down for two days. His mother had liked Elizabeth. That was one way he had pleased her. He was trying hard to shut out the sound of Kit's words. They couldn't touch him if he didn't remember. "I've known three women, all of them. Jane, Elizabeth, Katherine. And they all had to stand up to me in their own way." There was Nedda, he thought, she stood up to me, too. But I did right by sending her away. She'd never come back now—because she was selling everything. Even the house. The orchards to Furse. And he had written her on Furse's behalf! The raw spot opened again. Well, he had lost, that was all. He knew that now. He could not sway Kit. It was not rebelliousness in her, that he could have fought. It was a belief in herself, a loyalty, he had never experienced. "I've got to go in and face her in a moment. I can't lose her, no matter what else. But I don't know what to say, how to begin." He closed his eyes and drew a long breath. If only he could get away from the noise—the big tick of the clock, the heavy beat of his heart, the unexpected ringing of the telephone. Then he heard Kit calling him. "Marvell, Uncle Ben is on the phone from Boston."

Kit had built up the fire in the study. She had drawn up a table and set two supper trays. The pungent smell of strong coffee filled the room. She walked around the trunk, which dwarfed the room much as the heaviness in her heart made her feel little and mean.

When Marvell came in, he asked, "Did you speak with Ben?" "No, Mrs. Crane said he wanted you."

"Proctor died yesterday. He wanted to tell me the funeral is tomorrow."

"Oh, I am sorry!" There was no picture of Uncle Proctor in her mind. All she could see was Aunt Emily, soft and pink-faced, in a long black dress. But even that faint outline was erased when she looked at Marvell. He looked so subdued, so tamed.

"So we're going to have supper here together. That's good—it's friendlier." There was an apologetic look in his eyes.

"Proctor died yesterday. He wanted to tell me the funeral is tomorrow."

getic note in his voice, as if he were almost ashamed to speak, that reminded her painfully of the Christmas party when he had opened the empty red box. If only he'd never been hurt, she thought, if only I'd never had to hurt him!

"Before Ben called," said Marvell, making a pretense of eating. "I was rummaging around the past. But I wasn't thinking of Proctor. He always seemed very present to me. I was thinking, Kit, about Castine. You remember we went down there once and saw the outside of the house, at any rate. And about my mother. You'd have liked her, I think. You've got some of her looks. Maybe that's just because I like to think we are all part of one another."

"But we are!" cried Kit eagerly. "Well, she wanted me to be a minister. I don't know as I ever told you about that. She started me out as a shaver, learning those fifteen psalms I know, and the Sermon on the Mount. She even trudged me up Mars Hill. Father was against such nonsense, and she never gave him, not even after I'd been apprenticed to old Brown, the plumber after Father died. She'd saved enough to send me to Theological School, somewhere in Maine—hard-shelled Baptist probably. The Bible was the same, she said, and she bought me a trunk."

For the first time Kit smiled on hers.

"Tin," he chuckled, "about as big as a suitcase. And you know what I did? I took her money and beat it off to Cornell, carrying the trunk by the handle, and spent most of my cash for fare. I went to get into the Engineering School. I stayed three weeks. I had fifty cents and a lot of jobs that promised to pay, but not soon enough, so I walked back."

It will all come back to him, she thought, that's what happens when someone you've known dies. All your life comes back, and that's easier.

"I became a licensed plumber right there in Castine."

"Did you—did grandmother mind much?"

"She didn't say. But she kept right after me to save enough to get up to Boston and into a draft office. Once she had seen what I had to do, she made me do the most with it. I'd learned a lot of the Bible and it's come in handy. Once I even laid down its law to Furse."

At the mention of his name, Kit gave a little sigh.

He pushed aside the tray and began to walk up and down the room, still hemmed in by the trunk. "I wouldn't have done it any other way," he went on, almost in defiance. "Now you're doing the same thing, and that's the way I want it. You'll have to forget what I said first, just as I will."

The tight weight on her heart lifted. She flew at him and he looked first at the trunk and then back at her. He bent down and kissed her.

"I went through it all again tonight," he said. "Golly, it was real, but I can't quite make it real that Proctor..."

She knew she had lived more in his thoughts with Proctor than he would ever admit. If I could make him talk about it, she thought, like this!

"I'm going to that funeral by heaven," he said.

"I'll go with you."

He frowned. "I'd rather—go alone. Do you mind? It's not at the house, you see, it won't mean anything to you."

anything to you..."

"All right, I'll drive you down to the station when you say."

"Just after lunch. It's at two-thirty. Proctor and I kind of finished neck and neck."

For a moment she looked hurt. He couldn't expect her to understand. "Don't worry, Kit, I'll come back. Tell you what, you and Furse can meet the six o'clock."

"Andrew?" she flushed with pleasure.

He wondered how long it would be before he got used to that name.

Marvell arrived at the funeral home early, from it baronial style, he guessed it had been the former residence of a brewer, but the small chapel to which he was directed was simple enough—hung with gray velvet, with no trappings of any kind except a lectern, two large pots of greenery and about two dozen portable chairs. This was probably the one and only occasion, he reflected, when Emily had not given in to Proctor's choice of a suitable room for a reception. At home she had always stumped for her French sitting-room, Proctor for the chilly drawing room on the second floor. In the end, the guests had marched up a flight of stairs and kept on their wraps. There was only a few people in the room. Marvell did not recognize any of them. He hoped he hadn't wandered into some private corner of meditation. But as he walked to a rear seat on the center aisle, he caught sight of the gray, flowerless casket at the far end. He was struck with a sharp disappointment. It was no longer a symbol, it was already a memorial. What had he expected, he asked himself. Nothing. To have waited so long for nothing. He knew all there was of loneliness now. The beginning, the middle and the dry, empty course to the end.

As the room began to fill up, he saw Abbot, who had grown heavier. Like most of the others, who were either friends or associates, he looked depressed, resigned to the contemporaneity of death. I hope Proctor's with a livelier crowd by now, Marvell thought. He discreetly craned his neck to pick out Emily. When he saw Ben and Fanny, he suppressed a desire to wave to them. Emily would probably slip in at the last. Then the gray velvet curtains parted and the minister lifted his voice in prayer. The words that followed left Marvell unsatisfied. He could identify the quotations as they fell—Job, Ecclesiastes, Corinthians—the strong bold variations of an eternal theme modified by the impersonal sympathy of the speaker. What does it mean to me? asked Marvell humbly.

The "I" had gone out of Proctor. The "I" that had known hate and fear, responsibility and frustration, shyness and brotherly love—for Elizabeth, at any rate. And the "I" is going out of me, too, he thought. The "I" who couldn't stand up to restraint, who could not face rebuke. I was as arrogant as he ever was and more—with Ben and Nedda, yes, and Furse. Maybe not with Kit. Maybe. He remembered Kit's words with a pain greater than grief or loneliness. "You're pushing me forward to take the place you should have had. I can't do it. You have to do it yourself." He knew, then, there was another "I" somewhere, what he started out with, what he had yet to find, or both. Had Proctor finally learned that? I wish to God we could have acknowledged the fact to each other, that's all.

LEGAL PRECEDENT may be set by a suit filed in New York Supreme court on behalf of Ronnie Farah, 5 (shown at an earlier age in arms of his mother, Frances). The suit calls for $50,000 damages against Ronnie's father, Henry Farah, manufacturer, claiming he misrepresented his financial status in 1945 Reno divorce agreement. It also seeks annulment of the divorce on grounds it is invalid because Ronnie's mother was not a bona fide resident of Nevada. The action was started by the mother. (International)

Softball Injury Is Fatal to Girl

PEEKSKILLS, N. Y., Aug. 16—(AP)—A 13-year-old Peekskill girl, whose brain was injured in a girl's softball game, died last night after more than 100 persons had rallied to a radio appeal for blood donors.

The victim, Carol Valentino, was struck on the head by a foul tip July 29 while catching for her team. She collapsed a few minutes later, and had been in and out of hospitals since then.

An operation at Grasslands Hospital near here last Friday disclosed that a vein deep in her brain was ruptured.

Radio Station WLNA here put out an appeal for the girl as she lay in a coma in an iron lung yesterday at Grasslands Hospital. Two transfusions were given, but the girl never regained consciousness.

Ex-Priest Marries Double Divorcee

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 16—(AP)—A former Catholic priest and his bride are honeymooning today in California. They were married at Buckeye, Ariz., 35 miles west of here, Saturday night before 700 guests and a guard of pistol-toting sheriff's deputies.

The bridegroom, Emmett McLoughlin, had asked that the deputies be assigned to prevent any trouble, Deputy Sheriff Woody Kilman said.

None materialized as the 42-year-old hospital superintendent and his bride, Mary Davis, 34, a striking brunette two time divorcee, were married before Superior Court Judge Charles Bernstein, a member of the Jewish faith.

The ceremony was held in the garden of the home of Ralph Watkins, former high potentate of the Phoenix Shrine Temple.

Four Rendering Plants Merger Is Announced

Henkle and Buchseib Company Included In New Company

The Henkle Fertilizer Company, established 30 years ago, and which had a plant near Paint Creek, a short distance south of Washington C. H., has been purchased by The Inland Products, Inc., with headquarters in Columbus, and the plant here will be changed from a processing plant to a pick-up station, it became known Tuesday.

Merger of the Columbus Rendering Co., E. G. Buchseib, Inc., the plant here and the A. Jones & Sons, Inc., of Chillicothe, was announced.

All four companies had been engaged in processing animal and vegetable products and by products, including tallow, stock feed, bone meal and hides.

The Buchseib Co. has had a call station here for many years, and hauled to Columbus for processing. John Chaney, manager of the Henkle plant here, will continue in charge, and the seven employees here will remain on the payroll, trucking and loading from the local plant.

Chaney said more trucks will be operated by the local plant than had been under the previous set-up.

Financing of the merger and addition of new working capital for Inland Products has been accomplished through a $750,000 issue of 12-year five percent first mortgage bonds underwritten by The Ohio Company, Columbus. The corporation is capitalized at $1,600,000.

Inland Products, Inc., will continue to operate the former Columbus Rendering plant on Frank Road; the Buchseib plant on Alum Creek Drive and the Jones plant at Chillicothe. Receiving stations for collection of raw materials from restaurants, butchers and other sources will continue to be operated at Mansfield, Washington C. H., Xenia, Bellefontaine, Kenton, New Washington, Sandusky, Sycamore, Dayton, Springfield, Hillsboro, Anesville, Jackson, Portsmouth, West Union and at points near Marietta, Ironton and Charleston, W. Va.

Officers of Inland Products, in addition to Carl C. Baas, president, are Henry J. Baas, secretary-treasurer; Robert M. Jones, Frederick L. Baas, Wesley O. Jones and Herbert F. Baas, vice presidents. The four Baas brothers are sons of the late John B. Baas, founder of the Columbus Rendering Co., and have been associated with the business more than 25 years. Robert M. Jones was president of A. Jones & Sons and Henkle Fertilizer Co. and Wesley O. Jones was secretary of the Jones firm.

With the sale of the company which he established in 1928, E. G. Buchseib will retire from all participation in the business.

In addition to collection and processing of animal products in Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky, Inland Products also will continue operations of its predecessor companies in buying semi-processed products in other states for manufacture in its plants. Many of the company's products are sold in eastern states and some are exported.

Also included in the Inland Products line is a complete, modern government inspected slaughter plant.

There are an estimated 300,000 miles of city streets in the United States.

Assistant Named For Rev. Caley

Vera Bowman, a June graduate from the National College for Christian Workers in Kansas City, Mo., took over her duties Monday as an assistant to Rev. Allan W. Caley, pastor of the Grace Methodist Church here.

A graduate of Lancaster High School in 1939, she went to the Kansas City College under the sponsorship of the women's division of the Methodist Churches of America. While there she majored in religious education.

She said today she looks forward to serving in this community and has already found residents of the community to be friendly and helpful.

Mercury Touches 86 Here Monday

Monday's peak temperature was 86 degrees, bringing some relief from the sweltering weather which had gripped the community for many days, with temperatures running up to 96 degrees.

However, the minimum during the night was 69 degrees, although the cooler temperatures arrived earlier in the night than it had some nights.

A reading of 72 degrees at 8 A. M. Tuesday, with light sprinkle of rain, indicated the mercury would not reach the 90 mark during the day.

Superintendent For Good Hope Schools Named

Harold E. Thomas Chosen Successor To Russell White

Harold E. Thomas today is the new superintendent of the Wayne school district at Good Hope.

The Wayne Board of Education accepted the resignation of Supt. Russell White at a special meeting in the office of W. J. Hilty, superintendent of the county schools Saturday and Monday offered Thomas the contract as his successor.

White has accepted a superintendent's position in Guernsey County.

The board then interviewed a number of candidates for the vacancy and offered the post to Thomas, pending his release from a Leesburg High School contract.

A special meeting at Leesburg on Monday night terminated Thomas' contract, leaving him free to accept the Good Hope position.

Thomas, who lives at 702 East Temple Street, taught mathematics and science at Leesburg and coached the basketball and baseball teams.

The promotion returns him to his alma mater. He graduated from Good Hope High School in 1937.

Thomas took his undergraduate degree from Cedarville College and then joined the faculty at Fairfield High School at Leesburg.

After one year, his teaching was interrupted by military service. He served three and a half years in the army and returned to Leesburg shortly upon discharge.

He has been on the Leesburg faculty for the past three years, studying each summer in the school of education of the University of Cincinnati.

Thomas recently completed the requirements for his master's degree in school supervision and administration.

He also holds a superintendent's certificate and Supt. Hilty described him as "well-qualified and specifically trained for this type of work."

Thomas' predecessor at Good Hope assumed the superintendency in October, 1948, after Fred Lowery left for the navy. White was given his release so that he could accept the opening in his home county.

Two New Teachers

In other actions, the board brought Mrs. Joan Hunter and Mrs. Joan Graft to the Wayne school system. Both are elementary school teachers.

Mrs. Hunter, a graduate of Ohio State University, will teach the fifth and sixth grades.

Mrs. Graft, who took her degree from Otterbein College, will teach the second grade.

SPEAKING OF Furniture

SOMETHING MISSING?

Look that living room over! Is there something missing, something you can't put your finger on? You have a beautiful couch, inviting easy chair, expensive rugs and low tables... so what can it be?

The chances are ten to one it's the background. Just as "Stone wall do not a prison make", plain unattractive walls do little toward creating a truly beautiful room.

Here's a chance for you to use a lot of imagination and only a little money. That's all it took to create the livable, attractive room illustrated above.

Note how beautifully the drapes blend with the design of the wallpaper in the corner of the room and how the white wood paneling sets off the fireplace on the whole side of the room. A few pictures effectively placed complete the picture.

By doing a little thinking and careful planning, you'll be able to come up with something new and attractive in backgrounds. Try to be "different"... the result will please you.

If you need any help, stop in and see us. Our experience might be of help to you.
